Since my involvement with the Melbourne Storm as head coach began in 2003, Musashi's products have been an important part of the way we prepare for each and every game we play. I have always considered Musashi's products we use to be a vital ingredient in making our team the best team it can be. There are many factors that go into making a successful rugby league team, with hard work at the top of the list, but we wouldn't have achieved the success we have without the products Musashi have provided us with in the time I have been at the Club. Our players are world class athletes, and Musashi's supplements have enabled the likes of Billy Slater, Greg Inglis and Cam Smith to become household names in not only the rugby league community, but in the national sporting community. I can confidently say Musashi's products are the best in the business, and they play a part in every facet of our training program, all the way from our preparation during the week, our match day routines, and our post-match recovery. It would be impossible for our players to prepare to the best of their ability for the week in, week out grind of NRL rugby league without the aid of Musashi's products.

Our Sports Science Coordinator, Troy Thomson, is a huge admirer of Musashi products and the service provided by Musashi's staff. Our High Performance Unit is arguably the best in the NRL, and their work is paramount to our success. The assistance the Musashi staff give to our High Performance Unit and players is first class, the advice they give is at the forefront of the supplement industry and a great deal of the credit for our recent success must go to the Musashi team.

I can't speak highly enough of the Musashi team, and I am looking forward to a long and successful partnership with them in the years to come.

Yours Sincerely,

Craig Bellamy.
